Harvest Update

August 19, 2015

ALFALFA

The rainy weather has cleared in New Mexico and Utah and favorable weather conditions are forecasted for the next week as growers continue their 3rd cutting Alfalfa harvest.

Growers in Arizona and Nevada are working to bring in 6th cutting harvest. Scorching hot weather and intermittent rains have created challenges for growers this cutting.

The 4th cutting Alfalfa harvest has begun in the Pacific Northwest. Weather has been to our advantage and quality is consistent with expectations.

Northern areas of Washington and Oregon are being impacted by smoke from wild fires. This increases the amount of time required for cut hay to dry in the field. In extreme cases this can cause issue with color.

TIMOTHY

Fires in the Pacific Northwest are also presenting some challenges with curing Timothy hay while it is in the windrows. So far the effects of smoke have been manageable and we are continuing to see good quality in the 2nd cutting Timothy harvest.
